April 2008

MESSAGE FROM THE COMMISSIONER

On February 27, the U.S. House of Representatives held a hearing on Drugs in Sports: Compromising the Health of Athletes and Undermining the Integrity of Competition. Many sports including baseball, football, basketball, the U.S. Olympic Committee and the NCAA were scheduled to speak. Horseracing also was invited to appear before the Committee and to talk about steroid use in race horses. Alex Waldrop, from the National Thoroughbred Racing Association, spoke on behalf of horse racing.

I mention this because steroid use in race horses is now under serious scrutiny. The Association of Racing Commissioners now has developed a model rule to regulate steroid use in horses. Eight states have already adopted this rule. Here in Michigan, we are currently developing a policy for regulating the use of bodenone, nandrolone, stanozolol and testosterone within 30 days prior to a race.

We look forward to discussing this issue with the certified horsemen's groups. However, this is an issue whose time has come. And in the near future, we will be issuing a policy to that affect.

ARCI ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Commissioner White attended the Association of Racing Commissioners International (ARCI) annual meeting in March. Wagering systems security and steroids were the two hot topics. Monitoring the wagering systems was discussed but the key issues were past posting and pool closings. Several major horseplayers were there and attested to the problems inherent in this system.

The issue of steroid use in racehorses was given a lot of attention. Though most people think of steroids in baseball players or the illicit use of them in high school athletes, racing is also under scrutiny. How to test and what withdrawal times will be are concerns that were discussed and found consensus. This means that it is no longer a matter of "if" we should regulate steroids but "how" do we do it.

Commissioner White returned from the conference with information to move forward on both of these issues here in Michigan.

ATTENTION DRIVERS

The ORC wishes each of you well during the fair racing season. We fully support this important avenue to our industry. However, please make sure of your availability to drive at the pari-mutuel tracks during this time. Failure to drive when programmed cannot be excused because of fair drives. Trainers should be made aware of their drivers availability.
